

FOUR WAYS TO BE AN ALUMNI LEADER

1) Oversee service events projects in your city!

We know you still have the itch to serve others! Almost all of our chapters need an alumni leader to be in charge of planning and running service projects for alumni in a region.

Service Project Coordinators will have the assistance of city Site Directors to help make connections with organizations needing assistance. Along with NDMV alumni projects, the SPCs could join forces with other alumni groups as well, including AmeriCorps Alums, Jesuit Volunteer Corps, City Year, and Public Allies. The Alumni Team will assist with connecting to these groups and getting the ball rolling on all service projects!

3) Facilitate alumni networking for the social butterflies in us all

Just like a service year, there is time for work and play, and volunteers, whether past or present, like to kick-back and enjoy their time after putting in a hard days worth of work. The Events Coordinators (EC) will help with planning happy hours, reunions, and other cool networking affairs for alumni in the area!

The Alumni Team and city Site Director would aid the EC by supporting them in planning the events, providing contact information for alumni, working to get resources for the events, and promoting them online and through word of mouth.

2) Lead Alumni as a Professional Development Guru

Alumni are most interested in having help with finding career opportunities and figuring out their life after AmeriCorps. While this is something everyone continues to work on throughout their life, we are looking for driven, organized, and network savvy alums to serve as Professional Development Coordinators in each city. These alumni would help alums strive for excellence within the workplace.

The PDCs will be in charge of connecting alumni to resources via job board, updates on professional development websites, webinars, conferences, and seminars. The PDC will have the help of the Alumni Team as they planned and executed different endeavors related to providing work related resources to alumni.

4) Become part of the Alumni Team to assist in the overall Alumni Project!

The Alumni Team is made up of 5 alumni, three of whom are also staff at NDMVA! The Team is looking for interested alumni who like to bounce around ideas, start new projects, tinker with ways to get people connected, and generally have a good time. Alumni on the alumni team are the big thinkers, the creative type, and the movers and shakers.

As part of the Alumni Team you would aid the three other types of Alumni Leaders (service project coordinator, professional development coordinator, and events coordinator) to ensure that the project is running smoothly.
